Climate change. Its obvious something has changed. There's no point in wasting time arguing with someone or a group to win an admission that it exists. As long as you are arguing about the obvious your mind isn't committed to implementing YOUR potential solutions. If that means walk more or bike more, do it, there's nothing to argue about. If that means your particular contribution might be buying eco friendly sourced, packaged and shipped products do so. Is anyone aware that motor oils are being developed that never have to be changed? These small things are transformative. I am suggesting to individuals, on a personal level, these actions are first steps in taking a leadership role as opposed to arguing (stagnation) about how not to take action. Just my thoughts caused by the realization that I haven't heard birds singing in a week or more until this morning.

That's what's for dinner! And I'm making a 3 cheese green chili macaroni dish as well. Breaking bread tonight with my aunt and uncle and parents. Relaxing by the ceramic smoker and watching an occasional hummingbird join in the fun. The hummingbirds completely skipped us this spring. Must have been a party north of us I was unaware of. And that's unusual for me 🙄 . But we have had these fascinating and physically mind boggling little birds for 6 weeks straight now. Maybe they are waiting on the earthquakes to subside before heading south.

To all my fb family and friends!! Thank you soo much for all the BIRTHDAY LOVE you've shown me on today....I don't look like what I've been through nor what I'm currently facing. There is a story behind my praise and my smile, but through it ALL I've learned to TRUST in the Jesus and depend on His WORD! The JOY of the Lord is my STRENGTH and I thank God for allowing me to see my 50th Birthday!!!
